Bibliography

8th Amendment: Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted, nor shall any person be sentenced to death.

- This article discusses the human’s right to life. The author goes into detail about how the current death penalty standards violate these rights. One right being that every person has a right to live, and no other person can take that life away from them.

- Brian Evans’ article talks mainly about the state of New Jersey’s recent breakthrough pertaining to the death penalty. In 2008, New Jersey passed bills on the abolishment of the death penalty. This article is important because it shows that the abolishment of the death penalty is still a relevant issue.

This article is used because it took a unique approach to argue for the abolishment of the death penalty in the United States. It compared our death penalty standards to those of other countries, and described their methods of abolishing the death penalty. Which provided different arguments for it abolishment.
